

A Global Policy Laboratory: Reforming Pensions in Developing and Transition Countries

Pension systems are one of the most dynamic areas of social policy reform. But how does pension reform contribute to poverty reduction and social development?

In this UNRISD seminar, our expert speakers provide recent evidence and insights on managing and reforming pension systems in developing and transition countries, and how these systems can work to drive social and economic development.

The UNRISD volume Reforming Pensions in Developing and Transition Countries, edited by Research Coordinator Katja Hujo, provides a wealth of information and analysis on which seminar discussions will draw.
